

When a major northwest software vendor needed to develop a suite of real time .NET showcase applications in just six weeks, it turned to Fast Track. And Fast Track delivered. On time, within budget – and with additional features.

Why should you choose Fast Track for your development project?

- We know software. Fast Track's founder, Brian Conte, was one of the original developers of Windows at Microsoft, and has since managed the development of over 50 product releases. His products have been used by millions of people and have won numerous awards, including "Product of the Year" twice.

"I am very impressed with Brian's ability to turn on a dime. Having worked with many software integration consultants and after being one in a past life, I think Brian is one of the best! From delivering well-documented specifications to making last minute feature changes, he never missed a beat."

- We're quick. We use the latest agile development methodologies to ensure your project is delivered on time. Because we use a short-cycle, iterative approach, you get the chance to see your product in action – and make changes if required – early in the development process.
- We're cost effective. Our state-of-the-art development center is located in India, which boasts the best-trained software development workforce in the world, at a fraction of the cost of local labor rates.
- We're time effective. Having a development team on the other side of the world means your project can move forward 24 hours a day. Try the latest release in the morning and send feedback and changes by the end of the day – chances are they will be acted on by the next morning.
- We work alongside you. Even though our development team is offshore, we have a local presence that understands the US market, and that can work closely with your team to understand your requirements and translate those into development specifications.
- We're flexible. Want someone onsite to make the offshoring transparent to you? Prefer to work directly with our offshore development team? Interested in setting up your own offshore development center? We can tailor our services to match your needs.
- We keep you in the loop. All of your project information, including feature development, issue resolution, and time tracking, is available to you online at any time. We regularly keep you updated on project status, and we're available via online chat and phone 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. information on your project.

Fast Track's Project Tracker gives you up-to-the-minute status information on your project.

- We do it all. Need a stunning design? Captivating content? An intuitive user interface? A social marketing strategy? Public relations assistance? We have award-winning partners who can assist with all aspects of the project, from start to finish.
