

process

Our development process is based on the latest agile development methodologies to assure projects are completed quickly and in accordance with project requirements.

Fast Track's SDLC (Software Development Life Cycle) can be divided into five phases:

Because Fast Track's development process is iterative, requirements do not have to be defined completely up front and can be changed at any point.